Afternoon Shadows—Breton Village is the title of this landscape by Abel G. (Buck) Warshawsky, Peninsula artist. The oil was acquired this month by the Maryhill Museum of Fine Arts, Maryhill, Washington. Mr. Warshawsky, whose studio is in Monterey, is one of the famous generation of American painters who spent most of the early part of this century in France. The canvas above was painted during Buck's most recent stay in Brittany in 1950. The artist is a knight of the Legion of Honor and has been a recipient of many other honors during his long career.

Coast Schools Set Annexation Study Meeting

Captain Cooper and Palo Colorado school districts, both lying along the coast south of Carmel contiguous to Carmel Unified School District, may ask to join with the Carmel district following a study meeting with Carmel Unified School District trustees on March 5.

The study session with the full board of Carmel trustees and representatives of the two elementary districts has been set for that evening at 7:30 o'clock in the music room of Carmel High School.

The two districts, both offering grades one through eight but without kindergarten instruction, have been in Monterey Union High School District, since historically the districts were linked with the Monterey school system before the Carmel Unified School District was formed.

Current interest in annexation has been rekindled by the recent consideration on the part of Monterey Union High School district to form a unified district with its affiliated elementary districts. (MUHS elementary districts now exist as separate entities, because the Monterey school system is not a unified one, as is Carmel.)

Monterey's unification, it has been explained by school authorities, would force Captain Cooper and Palo Colorado to join either Carmel or Monterey unified districts.

Palo Colorado district, which has one school house and serves 19 youngsters, extends south approximately from Point Soberanes to Point Cooper along the coast, and east approximately to the Santa Lucia ridge. It was established as an elementary district in 1880.

Captain Cooper, serving 75 students, was established in 1878 as Pfeiffer District, and contains one school building, Pfeiffer School, in Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park. It is bounded on the north by the Palo Colorado District, on the east by Greenfield Union Elemen-

Beach Acquisition Recommended In Coast Plan Review

Six beaches are proposed for acquisition as public lands in the Monterey Coast Master Plan Review prepared by the staff of the Monterey County Planning Commission and presented to the commission last week at a public hearing on the coast plan. They are Soberanes Beach, Garrapata Beach, Little Sur Beach, Big Sur Beach, Partington Canyon Beach and Limekiln Creek Beach.

Two harbors of refuge were also recommended. The report proposed they be at two of the following locations: Rockland Landing, Lucia, Big Sur River Mouth, Pfeiffer Point. Coordination should be maintained with the State Small Harbors Commission and the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers in order to develop the two harbors at one of these points, the report added.

Another recommendation was that all levels of government; county, state and federal, cooperate to accomplish development of public property suggested in the Master Plan for the coast south of Carmel to the San Luis Obispo County line.

Supervisors Adopt Los Padres Forest Motor Scooter Law

Monterey County supervisors, Monday, unanimously adopted an ordinance supporting the U.S. Forest Service regulations prohibiting motor scooter travel in Los Padres National Forest except on established roads and four trails. The ordinance will allow violators of the USFS regulations to be prosecuted in local courts instead of federal courts in San Francisco.

Persons who wrote supporting the ordinance totaled 577; against 248; and approximately 100 letters have not, as yet, been tabulated, according to a county clerk's office statement made this morning.

At Monday's public hearing, the supervisors' board room was filled. Persons who spoke in support of the ordinance totaled 55; against 20.

Thomson J. Hudson, supervisor from this area, this morning expressed delight that the ordinance passed as easily as it did in the face of opposition from motor scooter interests.

Burt Talcott, chairman of the board of supervisors, stated at the hearing on the ordinance, "There is more individual interest in this matter than in any other that has come before this board."

Carmel Woman Goes Off Cliff In Car At Hurricane Point

A Carmel woman whose car plummeted some 800 feet over the cliff at Hurricane Point on the Coast Highway yesterday afternoon managed after eight hours to crawl back up the cliff and seek help from a passing motorist.

Mrs. Lorine Vahlbruch, 36, who lives at Fourth and Santa Fe Streets, escaped with comparatively minor injuries. According to the California Highway Patrol, the accident, to which there were no witnesses, occurred between 3:00 and 4:00 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the car driven by Mrs. Vahlbruch went out of control on a curve at the point, which is just north of Little Sur Beach.

After reaching the cliff top about midnight, Mrs. Vahlbruch attracted the attention of an unidentified motorist, who telephoned for help from the U. S. Coast Guard Station at Point Sur. She was taken to Peninsula Community Hospital with two broken ankles, a broken arm and other injuries.

'Aunt Mary' Reardon Has World War I Memories As Army Nurse In France

By Raylyn Penney

Meuse-Argonne and Metz. Aisne and St. Mihiel. The names of these places ring differently in different ears, depending a lot on age, degree of patriotism and affinity for history on the part of the hearer.

They are intensely personal to a number of Carmelites, among them Mrs. Thomas B. Reardon, who is known as "Aunt Mary" to certain of her friends, including some officers of the Carmel Police Department and members of Carmel American Legion Post 512.

For Mary Reardon, then Mary Furey, was a member of one of the first groups of United States Army nurses sent to France in World War I. She served her country in a time when nurses had neither commissions nor any other really firm status with the military, and when medical treatments and techniques were primitive compared with those of today.

Born 76 years ago in Pennsylvania, Mrs. Reardon is the widow of Thomas B. Reardon, a Carmel landlord, who came to town in 1906 and died here in 1932. The couple was wed in 1928, after having met when Mrs. Reardon was on the nursing staff of Mills Hospital and living in San Mateo.

But much earlier than that, Mary had grown up in Hartford, Connecticut, full of the idea of someday becoming a nurse, she says. Her family had moved to Hartford when Mary was 9 or 10, and as a young woman she received her training at St. Francis Hospital in Hartford.

On her graduation from St. Francis in 1911, she joined the American Red Cross, and contin-

Half-Million Dollar Sale Of Hospital And Annex Pending

A use permit to operate the Peninsula Community Hospital and the Community Hospital Annex as convalescent homes will be requested from the county planning commission on Tuesday. That afternoon a public hearing on the matter will be held in Salinas at 4:00 o'clock.

Thomas Tonkin, administrator of the hospital, reports sale of the two properties for a sum in excess of one-half million dollars depends on the use permit being granted.

Two separate parties are negotiating to buy the properties for use as convalescent homes. In 1959 the county rezoned both properties for this use under the permit regulation.

The 3.9-acre hospital and the nine-lot annex properties are situated just outside the boundaries of Carmel.

Patients will be moved from both facilities "sometime in May" following the April completion of the New Community Hospital in Del Monte Forest, Tonkin states.

Carmel Man Heads Community Chest Budget Committee

Mrs. Robert E. Newton, president of the Monterey Peninsula Community Chest, appointed August Johnson of Carmel budget chairman for the coming year at an executive board meeting on Monday.

Mr. Johnson was appointed to the Community Chest board of directors and executive committee last week. Budget committee work under Mr. Johnson's direction is scheduled to begin with a review of Chest agencies in April. At the conclusion of the review the committee will recommend which agencies shall be supported next year and the amount of money to be raised in the 1962-63 Community Chest campaign.

Board Of Adjustments Holds Decision On Scenic Drive Land

Complexities resulting from applications for a building site use permit and an open space variance for two parcels of land on each side of Scenic Drive caused planning commissioners, sitting as a board of adjustments yesterday afternoon, to hold the matters for further study. Reports following the study will be made at a meeting of the board on February 28 at 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

A nine-foot pedestrian path between San Antonio Street and Scenic Drive below Eleventh Avenue was the first complexity. City attorney John Morse upheld Building Inspector Floyd Adams' ruling that this public right of way made Mrs. Anne Bosworth's property north of the path a corner

GONZALES CAGERS AT CARMEL FRIDAY NIGHT

Regular league play winds up for the Carmel High basketball squads tomorrow night when they host the scrappy Gonzales Spartans in triple-header action. Coach Clyde Klaumann's surging junior-varsity gang goes after three wins in a row in the 5:30 fracas; the challenging Padre lightweights can still get a piece of the title with a win over the speedy Spartan Babes; and Coach Dick Lawitzke's varsity can snare second place if San Lorenzo falters in its game with the Hollister Haybalers. The Gilroy Mustangs have tucked away the varsity B-league title with an undefeated league record.

Top interest in tomorrow night's action will center on the lightweight fracas, with Coach Harold Lippstreu's charges having a fine chance to earn a deadlock with the league-leading Live Oak aggregation. The Padre Babes also have a score to settle with the Little Spartans, having been rudely upset by the valley lads in the first-round meeting. This loss to Gonzales was a severe blow to the pennant aspirations of the Carmel lights and they will be going all out to prevent a repeat of the first meeting. Coach Lippstreu figures to go with the same finely-honed quintet which has been so successful in this season's play. Al Arndt and Rich Wise will handle the forward spots, with Jose Fernandez and Enborg Halle doing the back line playmaking, and rebound ace Jack DeWitt at the pivot.

The Padre varsity, at the present time playing its best basketball of the season, has recovered from the loss of Jim Brown due to scholastic ineligibility, and appears to pack too much rebound and shooting power for the stubby Gonzales squad. Coach Lawitzke has a smooth working unit in Ted Leidig, Rich Shively, Jim Kelley, Pete Morse, and Rick Baldwin and, barring Gilroy, the Red and Gray quintet is the best in the league.

Surprise team at the Padre campus is the junior-varsity crew which couldn't beat Santa Catalina at the start of the season, but which has become the scourge of the jayvee league in recent weeks. Coach Klaumann has pounded sound fundamentals into his green squad and next year's Carmel varsity will be manned by most of Klaumann's charges. Opening the action for the Carmel jayvees will be Skip Michelson, Bob Wells, Dave Maher, Al Nishimura, and Harris.

PADRES DEAL KING CITY TRIPLE DEFEAT

Running true to form and repeating the triple-header win of last week, Carmel High's basketball squads posted three league victories over the King City Mustangs last Friday night at the Padre pavilion. The Carmel junior-varsity got things rolling in the right manner by clipping the Mustang reserves, 51 to 21; Carmel's lightweight gang had a tough haul before taking the measure of the Blue and White Ponies, 40 to 32; and Coach Dick Lawitzke's varsity had to put on the best comeback of the season to finish in front of the Mustang varsity, 72 to 64.

With Skip Michelson, Bob Wells, Dave Maher, and Mike Brasher leading the scoring parade, Carmel's junior-varsity enjoyed its finest shooting game, pushing in 22 field goals while holding the visitors to eight fielders. Thirteen of Coach Clyde Klaumann's hoopsters hit the score column as the neophyte mentor used his bench generously in an attempt to even up the competition.

Carmel's lightweight victory came at the free-throw line where the Red and Gray Babes outscored the Ponies, 16 to 6. Coach Picher's charges outshot Carmel from the floor, 13 to 12, but the over-anxious King City defenders presented the Carmel gang with too many free tosses. Rich Wise (17) was the top scorer for the Padre Babes followed by Al Arndt's nine-point performance.

Down by 12 points in the middle of the third period, Coach Dick Lawitzke's poised varsity took the play away from the Mustangs in the final period and surged ahead for the 72-64 victory. With Jim Kelley hitting from the outside, and Pete Morse cashing in on the "garbage," Carmel's two big men notched 37 points between them and took complete control of the boards when King City lost Dennis Frudden and Lyle Macklin via the five-foul route. Ted Leidig chipped in with 17 valuable points, and the clutch shooting of Rich Shively gave the Padres a boost when they needed it the most. Little Dan Andrus was King City's top scorer with 23 markers, but the clever playmaking of Macklin and Frudden put the punch in the Mustang offense.

THINK!

A man ought to stand up for what he believes.

We feel that men should stay open-minded and keep thinking. The mind of man is the greatest creation of God, and it was not made to be closed in, once for all, by church or creed, Bible or Iron Curtain. It was made for thinking, for the fresh search for truth in every generation.

Challenging 'absolute' truths is a stimulating experience. "Nothing at last is sacred," said Emerson, "but the integrity of your own mind."

We welcome your views.

Pianist Seymour Lipkin Appears More At Home In Modern Period Music Judging By Concert Here

BY EBEN WHITTLESEY

A varied and well chosen program of piano music was presented to the Carmel Music Society last Friday evening by Seymour Lipkin. This young virtuoso provided an interesting demonstration of the fact that much more than mere dexterity and facility is required to do justice to major works of the piano repertoire. He also served to remind us that we have come to take too much for granted the impeccable platform manners of most first-class concert artists. It takes more genius than Mr. Lipkin possesses to justify the artist noisily beating time on the stage with his foot and humming the music so loudly as to be clearly audible in the balcony. Many artists would find it hard to produce these unusual side effects without interrupting the flow of music, so perhaps we should appreciate them as an added achievement by Mr. Lipkin.

Bach's French Suite in G Major provided a pleasant opening for the concert. The calm and measured first movement followed by the spirited courante were well executed. The next two sections did not seem to hang together very well, while the bourree, though spirited, was somewhat rough. Runs and triplets were slurred and slighted, the general effect being choppy and without real sparkle.

Beethoven's Sonata Op. 81 (a) was played with a forceful and turbulent style characterized by bursts of brilliant agility. One felt an absence of poise, while the artist failed to communicate a sense of form and structure. Loud tones often lacked balance and sonority.

Chopin was represented by a couple of sure-fire virtuoso warhorses, the Barcarolle and the F Sharp Minor Polonaise. The former was presented with great facility, power and dramatic effect, but the interpretation lacked balance and a sense of form. The Polonaise was marked by brilliant runs and flashing speed, particularly in the right hand. There was also a pretty continuous obligato with the left foot. The intonation was harsh and at times sounded more like the accomplishment of a Class B movie than the finished achievement of one of the great romantic composers.

Following the intermission, Mr. Lipkin turned to the moderns, among whom he feels more at home. Four interesting Stravinsky etudes were played most effectively, though sometimes the rhythmic structure seemed to be over-emphasized. Probably every artist feels more affinity with one musical period than another. Mr. Lipkin gave the impression of being more at home among the moderns. Ten short pieces for children by Bartok were full of contrast, gaiety and whimsy. It was very pleasant to hear these gay sketches which are not often on the program.

Finally there was Prokofiev's Sonata No. 3 in one movement. This artist's rather staccato style lends itself to the spirited, witty music of the great Russian composer. He also has ample technical facility for its execution. A real feeling of excitement was communicated, and the audience replied with warm applause and some stamping that was louder than that heard earlier from the artist. Two very trite encores, Mendelssohn's Spinning Song and a Schubert march brought the evening to a dramatic anticlimax.

Branson Asks County To Rezone Acreage For Apartment Use

Tuesday afternoon, 2:40 o'clock, the Monterey County Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on the rezoning of five and one-quarter acres at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

Willard Branson is requesting that the land, now zoned for single family residential use, shall be rezoned R-4 which includes apartment use, and could include trailer court use. He plans to build a 25-apartment development on the acreage which is situated on Val Verde Drive between the existing Rancho Carmelo shopping center and Carmel Junior High School presently under construction.

Branson presented plans for the garden-type apartment development to members of the Midvalley Property Owners Association at a meeting on February 14 in Carmelo School.

Units will have one or two bedrooms and average 1200 square feet in area, according to the report of the property owners' association.

Joe Broadman, spokesman for property owners on Val Verde Drive who oppose the apartments, pointed out that good planning practices would fit apartments into an all-over concise master plan that would take into account future and existing roads, sewage and water requirements, also future needs of the area. He asked that a thorough study should be made of the proposal before any rezoning action is taken by the county planning commission.

Letters To Kennedy Read, Have Impact, Salinger States

President Kennedy receives 20,000 letters a week, and out of this number personally reads 50 letters each day, Pierre Salinger, press secretary to the President, told 250 persons who attended a dinner at the Casa Munras Saturday evening given by the Carmel Women's Democratic Club. The affair honored Mr. Salinger and his mother, Mrs. Jerome Carlson, whom he visited in Carmel over the week end.

Letters to the President are most effective when they express personal opinions of a citizen on any matter instead of repeating views of a group, Mr. Salinger emphasized. All letters to the president are read and, according to their subject matter, referred to appropriate agencies of the government where they have a definite impact, he added.

The importance of news communication between the United States and other countries of the world was stressed by Mr. Salinger. He described how his office facilitates this communication by a direct wire from Washington to New York for the benefit of foreign correspondents who directly report sessions of the United Nations only and give no on-the-spot coverage to Washington and the rest of the country. Mr. Salinger's office arranges for Washington officials to visit these foreign correspondents in New York, also is planning a series of tours of the United States for newspapermen from abroad, he reported.

A free flow of news between nations is a safeguard to peace, according to Mr. Salinger.

President Kennedy, in an effort to elucidate United States foreign policy thinking, is inviting American publishers to luncheons and meetings with him in Washington. This program will improve the President's communication with the people of the United States, a problem for every president since Washington, Mr. Salinger stated.

There are now 1,200 accredited White House correspondents; in the time of Franklin D. Roosevelt there were only 100, he observed.

Television coverage of the President's speeches provides direct communication between the President and the people, he pointed out. In his opinion this coverage increases reading of newspaper accounts and comments on President Kennedy's reports to the country. Only six newspapers in the United States carry the full text of the presidential speeches, he declared.

BISHOP PIKE TO HOLD PREACHING MISSION

A three-day preaching mission by California's controversial Bishop James Pike will be held next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday on the Monterey Peninsula. Under the heading, Why Christ? the Episcopalian bishop will speak nightly at 8:00 o'clock at the Monterey Presbyterian Church under the auspices of the Peninsula Ministerial Association.

The topics for his talks will be Christ As Meaning, Christ As Pattern, and Christ As Saviour. Bishop Pike is noted for his sermons, lectures and television commentaries on contemporary religion. Currently he is engaged in a series of preaching missions throughout California.

Three choirs and organists will participate in the event: Sunday, the host Presbyterian Church choir under Reu Manhine's direction; Monday, All Saints' Episcopal Church choir under Robert Forbes' direction; Tuesday, Pacific Grove Methodist Church choir led by Ernest Tweedy.

Tuscany, Italy's golden province, a new excitingly different color film, produced and narrated by Stan Walsh, will be presented on Tuesday evening at 8:00 o'clock in Sunset School Auditorium.

Travel off the beaten path to Italy's golden province is a remarkable camera adventure. Pre-Roman Etruria; present-day Livorno (Leghorn); handsome naval cadets on the Mar Ligure; artists along the Arno; Florence, political, cultural, financial arena of Tuscan creativity; 12th century Battle of the Bridge at Pisa; Michelangelo's Marble Mountains of Carrara; harnessing volcanic steam; midwinter carnival at Viareggio with the world's largest papermache floats will be shown as well as Tuscany's turreted cities and the rock-ribbed coast of Europe's miracle province.

The thirst for travel and a curiosity to know people and their lands has led Stan Walsh into unique travel adventures. He lived five years in Europe and with his camera captured many subjects rarely seen by the casual visitor. Along with producing the first complete colorfilm on Tuscany, he also filmed short subjects along the Rhine, in Scotland and in London. He does his own writing, filming and production work.

Mr. Walsh is a graduate of the University of Southern California where he majored in civil engineering. His engineering activities have taken him throughout the nation and abroad. He was a member of a planning team engaged in building N.A.T.O. bases in Western Europe and North Africa.

As a roving cameraman, engineer and lecturer, he strives to bring to the travel - adventure screen the unusual aspects of life around the world. The happy combination of being a temporary resident and an enthusiastic photographer enables him to get off the beaten path and record activities and scenic grandeur never before photographed. He was recently warded the Seven League Boot Camera Caravan Award for outstanding coverage of the Viareggio Carnival.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

Brotherhood will be stressed at Christian Science church services Sunday.

Scriptural selections in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Mind" will include this advice of Paul: "Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment" (I Cor. I).

One of the correlative citations to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states (pp. 469-470): "With one Father, even God, the whole family of man would be brethren; and with one Mind and that God, or good, the brotherhood of man would consist of Love and Truth, and have unity of Principle and spiritual power which constitute divine Science."

Durell Decker Explores Pompeii, Climbs Vesuvius, Visits Family In Matera Before Leaving Italy

Editor's note: Durell Decker, 20 years old, is travelling in Europe after finishing two years of college. She stays in youth hostels and last month her expenses were $50. In letters home to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Decker, she describes her travels.

Durell, at the end of her stay in Italy, writes: "I have been in Italy for six weeks and can carry on a conversation in Italian for an hour and a half and not exhaust my vocabulary, limited as it is. It is amazing how much Italian I can understand. Spanish really does help!"

"I left Rome on January 2 for Naples. The coastline from Rome to Naples is beautiful and much like home. The Isle of Capri resembles Point Lobos.

"I spent three days wandering around the ruins of Pompeii, and learned from a guide that Mount Vesuvius, which I climbed, had not buried the city with volcanic ash. It was Mount Sono which was called Vesuvius at the time of the destruction of Pompeii."

Durell was impressed with the first century jewelry and vessels she saw at Pompeii. Of the latter she says, "They were of glass, pottery, copper and occasionally of an alloy. Their lines were classic and could fit into a modern home today.

"Frescoes on both the inside and outside of the houses were popular and an off-red, ochre and black were the prime colors used. The main forum is glorious. Monumental Doric columns of white marble surround a half-acre area of white marble pavement which contains an altar of the same material.

"The house of the wealthiest persons had beautiful frescoes, a tremendous black and white marble mosaic floor and its own cistern, also Doric columns in the center patio surrounding a mosaic fish pond."

She was delighted with the hillside situation of Pompeii and observed that Pompeiians had excellent sewage and plumbing systems with bath houses in cellars of the homes as well as public baths.

The buildings were of lava brick with red and gold plaster inside, she noted, and the black and white marble mosaic sidewalks of the lava brick-paved streets were a foot and a half higher than the roadway. The streets had stepping stones in the center so inhabitants would have dry feet when crossing.

"The only thing I couldn't figure out was how the horses got over them. Ruts made by ancient chariots were quite evident," she added.

"We spent several days in Naples wandering through the huge market places and tried all of the native foods. On Sunday I went on board an Israeli steamer. It was the first time I had been on a real ship. I enjoyed it and had two meals of Kosher food. (Durell flew to Europe.)

"After Naples I went to Matera, a fair-sized town, to visit relatives of New York friends of my travelling companion, Pat.

"The family took us in as though we were the relatives who had left for America so many years before. Papa Bruno, an accountant, was a strict but just and upright man whose heart was capable of being melted. Mama was jolly and plump and taught in the school for orphans near her home. Auntie, Mama's sister, was a spry little lady in her eighties who did many of the odd jobs about the house. Clara, the 20-year old daughter, was a very sweet person, who had studied to be a teacher but had been in bed with an unknown ailment for a year and a half and was still weak. Alessandro, 18, was a freshman at the university in Turin: his vocation to be engineering; his love, classical music. Mariabruna, 17, was a vivacious and fun-loving girl. Johnnie, 15, the darling of the family, was our translator. Rosanna, nine years old, completed one of the most wonderful families I have ever met. They saw that every minute of our time was filled and begged us to stay longer.

"Matera is an interesting town with an ancient history. It was first inhabited by people who lived in caves hollowed from the hillside above the deep chasm which surrounds the town. Later the Greeks came, next the Romans, then the Spanish and finally the present-day Italians. There was a museum containing many pre-Greek artifacts excavated in the region.

"The city today is divided into two parts: the new, clean, modern section (Middletown, U.S.A.-type) and the old 'scavi' section where homes were carved out of the rocky hillside opposite the caves. A few people still live in these ancient homes, but most have been abandoned.

"I gained a good five pounds in Matera. The wonderful, generous Brunos fed us four-course meals twice a day and took us to their friends' homes before each meal."

When Durell left Matera she went back to Rome for a return stay. "I visited the Vatican, including its excellent museum, and St. Peter's. In addition to its fabulous gallery of paintings which has Raphael's Transfiguration, there is an Etruscan art section at the Vatican, the richest library in the world, Raphael's rooms, and in St. Peter's, Michaelangelo's La Pieta.

"I saw the Roman Forum, the Senate and the steps where Julius Caesar was stabbed. Another day

Director of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton University since 1947, Dr. Oppenheimer is also professor of physics at Princeton.

Born in New York City, he earned his bachelor's degree at Harvard University in 1925; was a student at Cambridge University, England, from 1925-26; took his doctorate degree at Gottingen University, Germany, in 1927.

Letters . . .

San Gabriel, California
February 19, 1962

Editor,
Carmel Pine Cone.

I note in the Los Angeles Times (Feb. 7) that a resolution has been introduced in the State Assembly by Assemblyman Carley V. Porter of Compton proposing the election of Assemblyman Charles B. Garrigus of Reedley as Poet Laureate to succeed the late Gordon Norris.

Regardless of the qualifications of Assemblyman Garrigus for this position, the poets of California believe that this honor should be conferred on a poet rather than a politician. We have a number of outstanding poets in California, many of whom have a nation-wide reputation. We sincerely believe that the choice of the next poet laureate should be left to the poets. At present, this choice is being carefully considered by the California poets.

Will you publish this letter, and if any of your readers agree and wish to help, they can by writing to Assemblyman Augustus F. Hawkins, Chairman, Rules Committee, State Assembly, State Capitol, Sacramento, California, and requesting that this resolution be defeated in committee.

Sincerely,
Will Strong,
Past President,
California Federation of Chaparral Poets.

Durell Decker Explores Pompeii, Visits Family In Matera, Italy

I walked along the Appian Way and visited the catacombs, the old public baths and the chariot race track.

"Sunday I spent in the flea market which stretches for miles and miles. Tivoli and its fountains and Hadrian's villa took another day, a third was spent at St. Maria Maggiore Church, St. Peter In Chains Church, the Borghese and Capitoline museums. We spent one day shopping and one relaxing before leaving on January 22. Perugia came next, then Assisi, Pisa, Livorno and a second visit to Florence.

"Now I am in Genoa on the Italian Riviera. The only thing of interest, except to bask in the sun, is Columbus' house which I saw this morning. My next stop will be Nice. Another language and another change of currency!"

Red Cross Seeks Blood Donors In Carmel March 1

The Red Cross bloodmobile will be in Carmel on March 1 from 10:00 o'clock in the morning until 1:30 in the afternoon. It will be parked outside the chapter house, at Dolores and Eighth.

"Stepping up" of its blood program during 1962 is a primary objective of the organization. "There are many healthy people between the ages of 18 and 60 in Carmel who have not yet participated in this great program," said the Carmel chapter's blood program chairman, Edgar Bissantz. "Helping in this way to restore to health fellow citizens who are in dire need is pleasant, painless and takes less than an hour of the donor's time. We hope that many new blood donors will experience the deep satisfaction that comes from this vital humanitarian act."

Smiths Back From Mexico

The first of the Carmel contingent to return from Puerto Vallarta are the F. Robert Smiths, who report that their two weeks of sun, swimming, hiking and relaxing were "just heaven."

The Smiths rented a house on a high hill overlooking the bay, the town and the jungle, "a wonderful view." For Lili's birthday, Bob hired a mariachi band of 17 members who were supposed to turn up at the house early in the evening. Several hours later Bob went down to round them up. He started back up the steep hill with all 17 musicians (everyone on foot, of course), but by the time they arrived at the house the ranks had thinned to 12. The concert began at midnight instead of 6:30 o'clock but everyone was as happy as if it had started on time.

In spite of new evidences of civilization, such as the introduction of electricity, the town still retains its primitive flavor and charm, according to Lili. The Mexican government does have plans to turn the place into a modern resort, but first a road must be built over the mountains to connect it with the outside world; at present it can be reached only by plane or boat. "Electricity is really a boon," says Lili, "because of the problem of keeping food. But when the maid went down to buy a chicken one day and came back carrying a frozen package instead of a bird with feathers, I was stunned!"

Other part-time residents of Carmel-in-Puerto-Vallarta are Frank Lloyd, who is expected home today; Louis Conlan, who arrived there two days before the Smiths left; John Upton, a former Carmelite, and his wife Ruth (they were married in November), who have been traveling in Yucatan; the Bert Dienelts, who have a house on the river in Puerto Vallarta and live there nine months of the year; and Remo Scardigli, who recently boarded a freighter there, bound for Manzanillo and an exploratory trip with friends in the silver jewelry regions of Mexico.

Klaumanns Were At Ball

Carmel police chief, Clyde Klaumann, and Mrs. Klaumann were among the guests at the annual Monterey County peace officers' ball which was held at the Fort Ord officers' club Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fell Stevenson (Natalie Raymond Owings) are seen, above, with the former's father, the Honorable Adlai E. Stevenson, U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations, shortly after their marriage on Saturday afternoon at Wild Bird, the cliffside home of Natalie's father, Nathaniel A. Owings, and Mrs. Owings at Big Sur.

The sun shone for the ceremony which took place at 3:00 o'clock on the small west terrace massed with yellow primroses. A cross, wound with yellow and magenta wool and decorated with gold, made by Natalie for her wedding, was silhouetted against the sea and sky and banked with white primroses to form an altar before which the bride and bridegroom stood facing seaward to recite their wedding vows to the Reverend Peter Farmer, vicar of St. Dunstan's Episcopal Mission in Carmel Valley.

Natalie wore a severely simple floor-length ivory taffeta gown which had a slightly longer train, boat neckline, and sleeves ending at the wrist. Her tulle veil, worn by her mother at her own wedding, was eight feet long and fell from a tiny headband. She carried a nosegay bouquet of white spring flowers.

Emily Owings of San Francisco, the bride's sister, was maid of honor, clad in a beige raw silk suit. Bridesmaids were Jananne Lasseter and Jacqueline Merrill of San Francisco.

Jananne wore a royal blue silk faille dress; Jacqueline's short full-skirted frock was of gold satin. All three attendants carried bouquets of yellow and white daisies and bachelor buttons.

John's father was best man. Ushers were his two brothers, Adlai E. Stevenson, III, of Chicago, and Borden Stevenson of New York City.

Guests invited to the ceremony at Wild Bird, all family members were Mrs. John S. Barnes, mother of the bride, and Mr. Barnes, of Albuquerque; Mrs. Borden Stevenson, mother of the bridegroom, of Chicago; Nathaniel A. Owings, father of the bride, and Mrs. Owings; Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, maternal grandmother of the bridegroom, of Chicago; Mrs. Ernest L. Ives, aunt of the bridegroom, of Chicago and Southern Pines, North Carolina; Mr. and Mrs. Timothy R. Ives, Bloomington, Illinois; Mr. and Mrs. James C. Clow, II, Snowmass, Colorado; Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, III, Chicago; Miss Wendy Millard, Big Sur; Nathaniel O. Owings, brother of the bride; Robert Eckart, Oak Park, Illinois; and Stuart H. Otis, uncle and godfather of the bride, of Libertyville, Illinois.

A reception following the wedding was held at Nepenthe, where 300 guests filled the big room and outside terrace overlooking the California coastline south of Big Sur.

The bride, granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis of Chicago, attended the Katherine Branson School in Ross, and the University of Munster in Germany. Her husband attended Milton Academy in Massachusetts, and Harvard University.

After a wedding trip to South America, the young couple will live in San Francisco, where the bridegroom is in the real estate development field.

Among those invited to the reception at Nepenthe were Mr. and Mrs. Martin Flavin, Colonel and Mrs. Allen Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. S. F. B. Morse, all of Pebble Beach; Senator and Mrs. Fred S. Farr and Mr. and Mrs. James van Loben Sels of Carmel; Mr. and Mrs. William Chenery, Mrs. Alan Gregg, Mrs. Valentine Mott Porter, Harry Dick Ross, and G. C. Wolterding, all of Big Sur.

Gladys Palmer

Miss Gladys Evelyn Palmer, professor emeritus of Ohio State University and a resident of Hatton Fields, was found dead early Monday morning in the garage of her home where she had apparently taken her own life by carbon monoxide poisoning.

She had made her home at Hatton and Martin roads for the past four years and, though retired, had been an instructor at San Francisco State College on a part-time basis for the past three years.

Sharing the home had been a friend, Dr. Ann Paterson of the SFSC faculty, to whom she addressed a note giving ill health as the reason for her action.

Miss Palmer was born May 26, 1895, in Chicago, and had had a teaching career spanning 41 years. There are no known members of Miss Palmer's family surviving her.

Private services were held Monday in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea with inurnment to follow later at Forest Home Cemetery, Forest Park, Illinois. The Paul Mortuary has been in charge.

Contributions to the memory of Miss Palmer may be made to the Gladys E. Palmer Student Aid Fund, care of Dr. Ann Paterson, San Francisco State College, San Francisco 20, California.

Carl Bachelder

Funeral services were held Monday in Oakland for Carl Bachelder, former resident of Pebble Beach and Carmel who died Saturday at his San Francisco home after a long period of poor health.

Mr. Bachelder was 86, born December 16, 1875, in New Hampshire, and was a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. During a career in business he became vice president of the Holt Tractor Company, retiring from this position to make a home in Pebble Beach over 30 years ago. Later he and Mrs. Bachelder moved to Carmel. They have lived in San Francisco since 1955.

Mr. Bachelder was a member of Live Oak Lodge, F. & A. M., of Oakland, the Transportation Club of San Francisco, and the World Affairs Council on the Peninsula.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by a granddaughter, Mrs. Edwin A. (Barbara) Flynn, and three great-grandchildren, all of Orinda. A son, Carl A. Bachelder, Jr., died in 1946 in an auto accident on Carmel Hill.

The funeral was held in the Chapel of the Chimes in Oakland, with interment following in Mountain View Cemetery.

James Lowsley

From Simi, Ventura County, has come news of the death on February 14 of James D. Lowsley, 80, a Carmelite until a year and a half ago.

A native of Silver Cliff, Colorado, Mr. Lowsley for many years made his home in Santa Barbara, where he was vice president and cashier of the historic First National Bank, which has since become the United California Bank.

In 1949, Mr. Lowsley retired to the Carmel area, making his home at Flanders Place in Carmel Hills. While a resident here, he was active in several projects including the Crosby Fund Committee. He was also a member of Trinity Episcopal Church of Santa Barbara, Magnolia Lodge, F. & A. M., of Santa Barbara, and of the Carmel Kiwanis Club.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Carolyn Belle Lowsley of Simi, survivors are a daughter, Mrs. Martha L. Curtis of Oakland; a son, James P. Lowsley; a sister, Mrs. Martha Hunt of Thousand Oaks, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral rites were held Friday afternoon in Santa Barbara with burial following in Santa Barbara Cemetery.

'Aunt Mary' Reardon World War I Memories As Army Nurse

ued to work as a nurse at Hartford until November 2, 1917, when she was sent by the Red Cross to Camp Bowie near Fort Worth, Texas, and was automatically transferred to the Army.

"There were 70,000 men at Camp Bowie then," Mrs. Reardon recalls. "As usual, nurses were in short supply and we were kept on duty long hours."

In the spring the Army nurses were mobilized in groups of 10 and Mary's group was dispatched to New York City in May, 1918. "In a way, life in the Army was easy. You didn't have to think at all, just look on a bulletin board to see what to do next.

"On June 19, after more training in New York, we boarded a mail boat which had been converted into a troop ship. There were 101 nurses among the troops on board.

"Our boat was in a fleet of 12, escorted by three airplanes, one dirigible which turned back after 12 hours out, and six destroyers.

"The Red Cross had supplied us in New York with one white uniform each and one blue uniform with Norfolk jacket for travel, along with a white shirt and a blue shirt, and hats which we didn't care for and which we exchanged for another style when we reached Paris."

They reached Paris in July, 1918, Mary's group going from there to what was called a "casual camp for nurses" at Mars Military Center, an American camp in central France.

"There was mud and plenty of it," Mary says. "The hospital at Mars was an old monastery. The evening we arrived, 200 men injured by mustard gas had been brought in. Again and as always, nurses and corpsmen were in short supply. In those days we hadn't the drugs that were developed later, and we could do little for gassed soldiers.

"I worked and worked. I slept on an army cot in a corridor, with my uniform on a doorknob beside me where I could reach it to go on duty.

"After a few weeks, a group of us was transferred back to Paris to a hospital near the Arc de Triomphe which had been the former home of a duke, to take care of the tremendous influx of American and French battle casualties.

"We were in Paris the day the armistice was signed."

Mary chose to celebrate that day, she says, by going to the theater with a friend who was a nurse's aide on her floor and a "doughboy from Texas."

"You couldn't get a taxi because the American soldiers had gone downtown and commandeered all the taxis. You could hardly get across the street.

"When I was still at the hospital, I remember I was standing by a window watching a plane, when I heard one patient behind me say to another patient, 'The next war is going to be fought entirely in the air.'

"We had a number of air raids. The telephone in the ward always rang twice if there were going to be an air raid."

On the street outside the hospital on that historic day, Mary bought a newspaper. She still has it. It was the Paris edition of the New York Herald and its headlines said, "The War Is Won! The Armistice Was Signed This Morning at 11 o'clock."

Mary left the Army after the war. Had she stayed, she would have been commissioned, her salary would have been raised, and she would have been otherwise better compensated for her service. The government decided, almost immediately following World War I, and in view of the job done by women like Mary, that this recognition was long overdue.

She worked in a number of civilian hospitals after the war including the Mayo Clinic, hospitals in Salt Lake City, and in the old O'Connor Hospital in San Jose.

"I heard a lot about Carmel while I was in California. After I met Tom Reardon, he brought me down here once, but I decided I couldn't live here. It was too cold."

Mr. Reardon himself had come here the very day after the San Francisco earthquake of 1906. He owned property on Ocean Avenue, including the building where the Mediterranean Market is now. He also had Carmel's first plumbing business.

It turned out, of course, that Mary Reardon changed her mind.

And in addition to her many adopted "nephews," Mrs. Reardon has another one, Jack McCormack, who is a school teacher at Tularcitos School.

In addition to the American Legion, Mary belongs to the parish of Carmel Mission Basilica, and has done volunteer nursing work for civic and service organizations.

Governor Stresses Recreation Needs In Monterey Speech

Two of the most important items of the 1962 California budget are education and recreation, Governor Edmund G. Brown stated Tuesday evening when he spoke in Monterey.

"I have proposed two steps to be taken in 1962 to keep California first in parks, first in scenic beauty, and first in that most important phase of the space age—space for leisure.

"First, a $2 million increase in funds for the development of park properties which the state already owns. Second, a $100 million bond issue for the November ballot to finance the purchase of new recreational areas to be held in trust for future generations," Governor Brown said.

"In education," he stated, "our budget will help school districts expand to make room for 212,000 new pupils. We will use $150 million to operate our state colleges which must make room for 86,000 students. And we will invest nearly $200 million in the University of California.

"In addition," continued Governor Brown, "we are putting new education programs into operation. I speak here of a new law requiring teachers to have an academic major or minor in the subjects they teach; another law requiring students to spend more time on solid subjects such as history and science. A third law will require students to begin the study of a foreign language no later than the sixth grade.

"I hope you will support us strongly in our campaign for the $100 million bond issue to be submitted to the voters next fall to acquire new park and beach land over the next five years.

"Let us remember Secretary Udall's statment, 'What we save now may be all we will ever save'," Governor Brown concluded.

Orville Rogers Gets P-TA Founder's Day Honorary Award

The annual Carmel elementary P-TA honorary award for Founder's Day was presented to Orville Rogers, principal of Sunset School, last Tuesday evening. The presentation was made by Herbert B. Blanks, who commented on Mr. Rogers's outstanding contribution to the youth of this community.

Colors were presented by Girl Scout Troop 158. Participating were Mary McNeil, Ann Benedict, Carol Biggs, and Maxine Jensen.

Living in a highly competitive world is one valid reason for testing, was one of the opening remarks made by Dr. Thomas J. Fitzgibbons of the California Test Bureau, speaker for the evening. Another important reason for the various types of tests given to the school child is to indicate what to expect from a child and what can be done next to enhance his abilities.

Dr. Fitzgibbons outlined the several types of tests now in use in schools—intelligence, achievement, aptitude, and personality tests. Used wisely, all of them sum up a small sample of the total child. Dr. Fitzgibbons pointed out the danger of mass testing wherein the child becomes a faceless score.

Rider And Zanides Plan New Peninsula Festival Theatre

A festival theatre, bringing the world's most renowned actors to the Monterey Peninsula in performances of the world's great plays, is the goal of Frederick Rider and Nick Zanides, who will hold a public discussion of their idea this evening in Monterey.

Beginning with the showing of a 45-minute film, called the Stratford Adventure, the two young men, currently co-directors of the Golden Bough Circle Theatre, will outline the way in which a small but determined community can establish a non-commercial theatre that rivals the finest on our continent. They have taken as their model the Stratford Shakespearean Festival of Canada, founded in 1953 with the help of the dynamic Irish stage director, Sir Tyrone Guthrie.

The community room of the Monterey Public Library will be open at 8:00 o'clock tonight to anyone interested in helping to get such a festival launched.

lot, therefore she was required to have a five-foot side setback instead of an inside lot three-foot set-back.

"The board's secretary, L. Di Rose, will report on this matter following research on similar corner lot applications and what future consequences might result if Mrs. Bosworth were given a variance to allow her to build closer to the pathway than five feet.

Property on the other side of the path also was considered. Owners of this land, Dr. and Mrs. Albert K. Merchant, requested a use permit in order to revise building sites already established on the property. This was granted on condition that the boundaries be revised to conform with corner lot demands.

The second complexity arose from the request of Anita Doud and Kathleen Doud Watson to divide a parcel of beach land west of Scenic Drive and north of Seventh Avenue into three building sites. Lots in this location on the original subdivision map of Carmel were 80 by 200 feet in size. Since then some have been divided into four 40 by 100 regulation size lots.

One 40 by 100 foot lot already exists on the original 80 by 100 foot lot under consideration yesterday. The Doud applications seek to establish the rest of the original lot as three 40 by 100 foot building sites.

Because Del Mar Street, access road to this land, has been abandoned, entry to the Doud sites is proposed by means of a ten-foot driveway off Scenic Drive. A committee consisting of Commissioners Dorothy von Meier, Hugh Smith, and J. B. Martin, Jr., will consult with Fire Chief Robert Smith as to whether the driveway is sufficiently wide for fire department equipment. They will report on this, the present status of Del Mar Street, also give findings and make recommendations on the matter next Tuesday afternoon.

Objection to the Doud request came in letters from Mrs. Philip Schneeberger, Leonard Carpenter, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Metzenbaum, all adjacent property owners.

Eugene Harrah, attorney for the Metzenbaums, appeared yesterday to speak in opposition to the Doud request. Another attorney, Webster Street, represented Miss Doud and Mrs. Watson.

Colonel John J. Gahan spoke against the Doud matter; Mrs. Gladys Johnston, Mrs. Lloyd Simpson, James Doud, and Ralph Stean spoke in favor of it.

The board granted, because of steep terrain hardship, the request of Charles J. Seaver for building site and open space variances for his lot at the southeast corner of Eighth Avenue and Forest Road, so that he may construct an off-street parking facility.

Currently the Cooper district has plans for a new larger school building, to be constructed near the present school site, being processed by the California Division of Architecture.
